SPU-016 MOUNTAIN VILLAGE EXPERIENCE

Duration: 4.75 Hrs Tour Price: $129.00

Date: April 15, 2023 11:15 AM

Become immersed in Croatian culture by visiting a Dalmatian mountain village, where you will watch a folkloric performance and savor a traditional meal made with local ingredients during this tour created especially for Sirena's inaugural season. After departing from the pier, you will soon leave the urban environment of Split behind and head into the inland mountains of Croatia. The route will be winding, densely forested and wonderfully scenic, as the Dalmatian coast will occasionally come into view. The mountain landscape has changed little over the centuries, and in many ways traditional life has remained unaltered, as well. You will see that firsthand upon entering Radovici, a speck on the map that still celebrates an authentic Croatian village lifestyle. While walking through the streets, you may be offered a glass of local grappa and perhaps a taste of poljicki soparnik, a simply prepared vegetable pie made with onions and chard. The pie is so emblematic of this region that the Ministry of Agriculture has requested that the European Union proclaim it an official product of Croatia, which will protect it against knock-offs claiming to be poljicki soparnik. After exploring the village on foot, a full lunch awaits you at a local family farm. On the way there, you may enjoy participating in balota, a traditional Croatian bowling game similar to bocce in Italy. In keeping with the theme, lunch will consist of authentic local dishes, hearty soup, garden-fresh salad and dessert. As an accompaniment, a folkloric group will sing popular Dalmatian songs. Following this delightful and enlightening cultural experience, you will re-board your coach and transfer back to the pier. Please note: This tour includes approximately 1 hour of moderate walking. There will be some uneven terrain and steps to negotiate. The tour is not available to wheelchair guests and not considered suitable for those with walking difficulties. Weather appropriate clothing; sun cap; sunglasses; sunscreen; a bottle of water from the ship; and flat, sturdy walking shoes are recommended.

Converse with the locals in a small Croatian village and help cook a traditional dish affectionately known as Dalmatian pizza. Croatian cuisine in coastal regions often includes seafood such as squid and Adriatic white fish, although heavier stews with lamb and vegetables are also popular. The baked dish peka is another traditional favorite that is slow-cooked "under a bell," a phrase referring to the dish being cooked in a pot with a bell-shaped lid that is then covered with burning embers. Once the fire is going, you will join the villagers and together prepare soparnik, a dish so traditional that it is included on Croatia's list of intangible cultural heritage. Known more familiarly as Dalmatian pizza, soparnik is a meatless dish made with wheat flour, Swiss chard, onion, olive oil, garlic and salt. While the concoction is cooking between the boards in the open hearth, the locals will entertain you with traditional accordion music. Then, lunch will be served.

- Mingle with the locals in a village while you help prepare a traditional Croatian dish.
- Discover the complexities of Croatian coastal cuisine, which centers around seafood.
- Dine on meatless Dalmatian pizza as soon as it's finished cooking in the open hearth.

As you walk along, you will see designer fashions in the upscale shops and most likely spot ceramic pine cones, a Sicilian symbol of hospitality. You will encounter other classic Sicilian treats at an open-air market nearby, where you will browse the stalls with the local residents. Afterwards, you will stroll through the leafy Public Gardens. Be sure to notice the English style, as the garden was designed by English conservationist Florence Trevelyan.

- Browse the stalls of a market and see ingredients commonly used in Sicilian cuisine.
- Stroll an English-style garden that is one of Taormina's most popular gathering places.

Enjoy a leisurely and immensely scenic walk through Villefranche, a fishing village that rims one of the most beautiful bays on the French Riviera. Now restored, the citadel houses the town hall and several museums. As you will discover, many of the narrow cobblestone streets of Old Town terminate at the waterfront, where you will likely see fishermen tending to their boats and day's catch. Of all the artists and authors that have been attracted to Villefranche, Jean Cocteau left the most visible mark. In the 1950s, the multi-talented filmmaker, poet and visual artist painted whimsical and spiritual images throughout the Saint-Pierre chapel. The Rue Obscure or Dark Street is another point of interest. Built for defensive purposes, the underground passageway stretches along the waterfront beneath the old quarter.
