Duration: 7.50 Hrs Price: $419.00

OVERVIEW

Board one of the world's most scenic railways as you journey through the spectacular Taieri River Gorge. Welcomed aboard by a friendly crew, settle into your carriage, and get ready for a breathtaking trip into a landscape only accessible by this train. First tracing Otago Harbor, then traversing suburban Dunedin and a fertile plain, you'll soon be climbing into the sheer cliff faces and plunging ravines of the Taieri River Gorge. Much of the ride takes place high atop soaring stone-and-lattice viaducts that early engineers, masons, and railway gangs somehow managed to build through extremely challenging wild New Zealand terrain. The fact that they succeeded is a true marvel – which you get to experience firsthand today. As you relax and watch in awe, your carriage will pass one unspoiled panorama after another, winding its way through the gorge over dramatic bridges suspended high above the placid river below, and through no fewer than 10 tunnels carved out of solid bedrock. You'll enjoy a light picnic style boxed lunch while on board. Your journey concludes either at Dunedin Railway Station, a suitably grand Victorian landmark, or continue back to your awaiting ship.

- Travel over countless latticed-steel and stone bridges and through 10 tunnels as you traverse the rugged Taieri River Gorge.
- Take it all in from the civilized comfort of your carriage with morning tea and a light lunch served.
- Disembark at Dunedin's landmark Victorian railway station, where you can opt to remain in town awhile or return straightaway to the port.

- Bring sun protection as needed.

PLEASE NOTE

Although there is minimal walking on this tour, guests must be able to get on and off the railway cars – which requires managing three to four high steps. A wheelchair-accessible railway car might be available if requested in advance. Depending on the scheduled return time, free time allocated may be allocated at Dunedin Train Station as the train can only return to the port at certain times. Time permitting at the end of the tour, guests may go on their own to explore town but are responsible for getting back to the ship on time. Dunedin town is located 30 minutes from Port Chalmers where the ship is docked. Where possible, the train departs and returns to Port Chalmers and your ship. - See seemingly endless Victorian, Edwardian, and English Baroque-style buildings.

above a natural spring that imparts trademark flavor to its wares, this gravity-fed brewery is one of just two in the world still using an open-style vat to create beers from the original recipes. Sampling several varieties, you'll find some that deliver a distinctive 19th-century tang. A stop for lunch at a nearby alehouse often involves fresh cod fried in batter made with Speight's beer. Then it's on to history of another type as you browse the Stories of the South exhibit in the Otago Museum, showing how this region's magnificently rugged landscape has shaped the lives of all who've settled here. The museum also boasts the world's largest collection of extinct moa skeletons and the country's largest fossil, a 23-foot-long aquatic plesiosaur. Your return trip to the pier includes a photo stop at the much-celebrated Dunedin Railway Station, built in checkered Edwardian Baroque style in 1906.

HIGHLIGHTS

- Tour an iconic gravity-fed brewery that's been making its beer the same way since the 19th century.
- Sample a range of their beers, including some that really do have a delicious ancient taste.
- Browse the exhibits at the Otago Museum, where this region's natural and cultural history are shown to be connected.

Experience farm life – authentic farm life – in the rugged Otago high country, a destination best reached on an all-terrain off-road vehicle. An ancient shift in the tectonic plates created this vast elevated landscape, which is mostly covered with alfalfa and tussock, a native New Zealand grass. You will witness the farmers' daily lives as they manage their herds across a vast expanse of undulating land that is subdivided into hundreds of separate paddocks. The challenges are many as the climate is harsh with low rainfall, cold winters, and hot summers. Overcoming those difficulties has made the longevity of Barewood Station more fulfilling for the farmers. While gazing out over the inspiring vistas, you can snack on a charcuterie board of locally sourced specialties.

- Visit a large working sheep farm in the rugged Otago high country.
- Enjoy an authentic farm experience without pretensions or staged events.

During your time here in this amazing high-country outpost, you'll learn about its intrepid early settlers and the challenges of living at the station even today. A refreshment will be served, and you'll have plenty of time for a leisurely walk, some photography, or just sit back and in awe at the views. OVERVIEW

Get an insider's look at a high-country station with more than 10,000 merino sheep, whose wool is mostly processed for outdoor clothing.
